

NORWICH ART SCHOOL EXHIBITION

Varied and Attractive Work Shown in the Academy Section and by the Children's Classes—Many Unique Articles Appear in Metal Cases.

The annual exhibition of the work of the Norwich Art school was held on Friday evening from eight until ten o'clock, followed by dancing until midnight. Henry A. Tirrell received, assisted by the teachers of the Art school. The halls were attractively decorated with oak boughs, together with dogwood and lilacs, and many fragrant groups of spiraea, peonies and iris of varied hues. In charge of the dancing and refreshments were the Misses Johnson. Music, under the direction of Mrs. Danby, was much enjoyed throughout the evening.

The Prize List.
The following prizes of $5 each were awarded:
Jewelry, Miss Faith Caruthers; pottery, Miss Harriet Trumbull; drawings, Miss Harriet Haley; composition, Miss Isabel Bacheler; general work, Jerome H. Skeesuck.
There was no prize award for design as the work was of such uniform excellence. The prize open to Academy seniors will not be announced until graduation day.

The Academy Section.
In the Academy section, displayed on the lower floor, the work was varied and attractive, ranging from geometric and mechanical drawing to embroidery. Floral work in water-color, still life, studies in black and white, drawings from casts after the Japanese print style, all had their places on the walls.

A pair of stenciled curtains by Ruth Scrivener, embroidered bag by Lucile Lord, leather work, jewelry, tiles, bowls, and some stenciled kimono by Elsie Graham, Lucile Lord, Lois Manning, Alice Larkham and Marian Frink were worthy of notice. There were attractively painted boxes by Alice Leffingwell, Elsie Graham, Isabel Bacheler, Marian Frink, Henrietta Gallup, Marion Woodworth, Helen Peale and Lucile Lord and Hazel Fletcher. Also some particularly pleasing designs in book-ends and some pottery and basketry. Very workmanlike were the books and bindings turned out by the class in Book-binding taught by Miss Nellie A. Loring.

The Academy classes were under the instruction of Mrs. Charlotte Eastman, Miss Alda Watrous, Miss Edith Briggs, Miss Faith Caruthers instructing the Academy students' afternoon class in jewelry and Miss Harriet Trumbull instructed the Academy students' class in pottery.

On the second floor were the exhibits of the Art school students. In the Children's Class.
In the children's class very attractive work was done. Very neatly designed and finished boxes were displayed, also flowers and life studies in crayon and in water color, by Eloise Smith, Mary Wyckoff, Mildred Fox, Harriet Deer, Barbara Smith, Constance Leonard and Marjorie Roath. Elizabeth Huntington, Charita Smith and Helen Tirrell also had interesting sketches.

Very unusual and attractive were the brooches and pendants modeled in clay and colored by this class, some of them showing marked talent. Eleanor Byron, Mildred Fox and Alice Sayles had decorated boxes, woven baskets and pottery bowls.

On the east wall was the work of the design class. Misses Edith Briggs, Grace Taft and Margaretta Johnson displayed Romanesque designs. Assyrian and Egyptian designs were presented by Misses Burham, Herbert Williams, Henrietta Gallup and Herbert. Many of these were very interesting.

Composition Work.
The composition work was most interesting. Miss Rachel's Spring, with its sleeping elf and hare in the pale spring flowers and pastel tints was quite unusual and a very graceful composition. Her other pieces of work were also very artistic and showed originality of conception. Miss Bacheler exhibited one bit of modelling as well, a graceful head in wax.

Miss Edith Briggs had some very fine composition work as had also Miss Bernice Burnham. There were fine posters by Miss Johnson and Miss Herbert. Excellent specimens of drawing were those shown by Misses Edith Briggs, Mr. Johnson, Taft and Field.

Three Cases of Metal Work.
There were three cases of metal work. Miss Faith Caruthers showed a case of advanced jewelry and silverware. Two lemonade spoons of silver with delicate, yet strong lines and a number of brooches were part of her exhibit. A bar pin of green gold set with pearls, jade brooch in silver, with unusually ornamental setting of leaves and stems, a touchmaline bar pin with ornamental detail in bright silver were executed by Miss Caruthers.

Two very beautiful pendants by Mrs. Frank Hempstead were displayed. One of original design set with a variety of stones of harmonious tints, topazes, pearls and tourmalines. Miss Leopold Aarrents exhibited a number of pieces of unusual merit. Among them were some pieces of hammered copper of excellent form, an amethyst scarf pin in silver, silver bracelet set with coral, a golding period setting and aquamarine set with pearls in white gold.

Fifteenth Century Ring.
A 16th century ring set with topaz and alwines in yellow gold is by Ines Horton.

Miss Edith Briggs shows two brooches, one of chrysocolla and one of amethyst. A very attractive ring of garnets in gold is also hers.
Miss Helen Storms' green onyx ring in unusual setting is very effective, as is also her topaz pendant.

The hammered silver tea set by Miss Mary E. Watties is most interesting and unusual. Of original and pleasing design and artistic and skillful finish, they were among the most noteworthy of the entire exhibit.

Some pieces of fine and notable work are scarfpins in gold by Miss Lillian Babcock, scarfpin of pearls by Miss Haley, amethyst brooch in silver by Miss Ruth Grant and a very beautiful barpin of green gold set with aquamarines and pearls by Lloyd Hall. The display of pottery was very much weakened by the large number of pieces sold at the Christmas exhibit.

Miss Harriet Trumbull has some particularly good pieces on display. The very expert shaping of her bowls and jardiniere is noticeable and the smoothness of her work is equally so. Her blues and greens are very clear and soft and the glaze very smooth.

Mrs. Frank Hempstead has some very beautiful pieces. Some of her bowls are of exquisitely soft tone and the bending and contrasting of color perfect.

Miss Nellie Loring's pottery is noticeable, one vase of crimson particularly so.
Miss John Huntington has some very perfect pieces of blue and aubergine. Miss Elizabeth Huntington exhibits ornaments and buttons of pottery, also tiny flower bowls and holders.

Miss Mary E. Lucas' pieces are in various blues and very attractive.
Tuesday Afternoon Class.
The Tuesday afternoon class shows much work in silver.

Miss Marquardt has a brooch of moss agate, a coral pendant and a silver bracelet set with jade. Miss Florence Smith exhibits an attractive pendant of quartz and pearls and a brooch of pink quartz. Miss Edith Briggs well exhibited a silver neck chain with tassels, silver bracelets set with amethysts, gold cuff links and gold bangles. Miss Maloney contributed a delicate silver chain in grape design, one set with corals, camellian brooch, cuff links and bracelets.

Miss Comeau exhibited a lapis ring and a silver chain set with corals. Miss Heebner had there silver signet rings, one set with Mexican opal, and a fork. Silver and Pearl Pendant.
Miss Agnes Leahy showed a silver and pearl pendant and a turquoise matrix brooch. Miss Beard has a silver bracelet and cuff buttons. Miss Purden exhibited bangles of gold and of silver and silver bangles. Miss Heebner, Marquardt, Smith, Comeau, Purden and Leahy also exhibited bangles, bracelets and scarfpins of silver. There were two heads of children copied from casts by Harry Raphael, displaying unusual ability. He also exhibited a lamp of blue pottery with drop of black 15 inches in height, which is the largest piece which has ever been fired in the kiln at the school.

Work of distinct merit and of a most unusual order is that done by Jerome H. Skeesuck in wood carving and in modeling. Several bas-reliefs in color which he exhibits are very fine and a tiny figure of a bending woman with bowl is delicate and exquisitely graceful. Two beautifully carved and stained bowls and a deep-bowled spoon are his also.

Head of Venus.
A very perfect casting of a head of Venus as modeled by him stands in his credit as well and he exhibits the copy of a cast of Antinous in the moist clay. Mr. Skeesuck's work is certainly worthy of notice and remarkable in view of the short period of training he has had.

The exhibition is open to the public Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Miss Harriet Trumbull is in charge of the Monday afternoon class in modeling. The tables used at the exhibition were loaned by the McNally Antique shop.

The orchestra comprised Ellsworth E. Parker, violin; Frank Benson, cello; Richard Kyle, drums; Mrs. Elizabeth G. Danby, piano.
Off for West Coast.
Harry L. Campbell, train dispatcher on the New London division of the New Haven road, left Friday for the Pacific coast to attend the train dispatcher's annual convention to be held in Fresno, Cal., June 12. Mr. Campbell goes as a delegate representing the dispatchers of the New Haven road. He will be gone about three weeks, visiting Chicago, St. Paul, Seattle and other western cities en route.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY
Dr. and Mrs. Gerard Jensen and son of Philadelphia have arrived in town for the summer months.
Miss Mabel S. Webb, instructor in art at the Keep school in Farmington is at her home on Rockwell Terrace.

Vice Consul to Mexico, Luther K. Zabrickie and his bride, Mrs. E. Boynton) are expected to reach Vera Cruz today, June 9, on their way to Mexico City.
Mrs. Frederick S. Camp, Mrs. Adam Reid, Miss Mary E. Richards and Miss Emily Camp are taking a motor trip through New Hampshire in Mrs. Camp's car.

The engagement is announced of Martha Hunt Smith, of 81 Holmes Road, Pittsfield, Mass., formerly of Norwich and Eastern Point, to David L. Evans. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunt Smith, her father being for years a leading banker and manufacturer of Norwich. Mr. Evans is prominent in Berkshire official circles, and at present is probation officer of Pittsfield. The wedding will take place in the early fall.
